

THINKING ABOUT COLLABORATION: QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER

- How are families currently involved as advisors in our program?
- Is there a range of ways for families to participate?
- Do we receive input from the diversity of families served by the program?
- What new opportunities exist for involving families?
- What are the barriers to family involvement?
- What strategies can we use to overcome these barriers?

Jeppson, E. S. & Thomas, J. (1995). Essential allies: Families as advisors. Bethesda, MD: Institute for Family-Centered Care.